Case - Timothy N. Pfeiffer,
Subject - Homicide, New Brunswick, N.J., 312 / various Operative - 312.

November 3, 1922. Continuing on the above matter, Operative located at the railroad station in New Brunswick, N.J., at about 8 a.m.

While at the railroad station Operative observed several reporters at the newstand in conversation with Garry Kenny's brother, and Operative overheard them to remark how they had had Mr. Mills up at the place of the murder. They also remarked how well Mrs. Hall kept up during her interview.

At about 10 a.m. Operative left the station and roamed about Town returning to the railroad station again at about 2 p.m. At this time Operative joined Garry Kenny at the newstand and entered in conversation with him.

Garry Kenny told Operative that Mrs. Hall, had a cousin (one of the Carpenders) who resembles Mrs. Hall very much, and that there was a rumor about Town that it might have been her that was up there that night instead of Mrs. Hall.

At about 2.30 p.m. a young man by the name of Danny came into the station and told Garry Kenny and Operative how he had driven Mr. Mills and the reporters up to the Phillips Farm and how the reporters had taken Mr. Mills over to the spot where the bodies were found and asked him (Mills) all kinds of questions, and while the reporters were questioning Mr. Mills, how someone on back of them fired a pistol off, firing five shots - It would seem that Mr. Mills would not pay any attention to this, only saying, "What are they doing that for?" Danny then told how a young lad found an empty shell of a 32 calibre about two feet away from where the crab-apple tree stood, and that the Laddie handed it to one of the reporters saying, "Why look what I found."

At about 2.45 p.m. Detective Mason, came into the station and went upstairs, and about ten minutes later Mrs. Gibson came along, went up to the newstand and asked Garry Kenny to change a two-dollar bill, putting her fing-
